November 23rd. 1895.

Editor of the World Almanac;

New York. N. Y.

Dear Sir:-

Apologizing for the delay in responding to your favor of the 1st. of October, asking for an estimate of the present population of the state of Mississippi, which was caused by my absence attending the World Fair and overlooked on my return, I beg now, if not too late, to comply with your request.

After a careful consideration of the question, I estimate the present population of the state of Mississippi at 1,323,750.—One million three hundred and twenty three thousand, seven hundred and fifty.

Very respectfully yours,

Governor of Mississippi.

P.S. I wish to repeat what I have on former occasions written you that THE WORLD ALMANAC is a work of great practical value, full of the most useful information, and is at once the most useful and convenient source of information at hand in any office or place of business or fortunate as to have a copy.
