Off-Campus Access to Journals, Databases and E-Books

Getting off-campus access to journals, databases and e-books is easy with the new Virtual Private Network offered by MSU ITS. After a one-time download, your computer will appear to the MSU network as though it's on-campus, even if you're traveling the world. Check out this and other options before you plan to work from home: <http://library.msstate.edu/VPN>

New Library Catalog Features

NEW! Now, once you find an item in the library's online catalog (<http://catalog.library.msstate.edu>), new buttons and links allow you to:

- Text the call number to your phone (Verizon or AT&T only, for now)
- Share it on social media
- Find a map showing the location of the item
- Cite it in the style of your choice

CVM Library Newsletter

April 2012

Center for Teaching and Learning's Brown Bag: on Promotion & Tenure: Does Teaching Still Matter?, Grisham Room in Mitchell Memorial Library, Wednesday, April 11th, noon - 1 PM. To register, visit <http://www.ctl.msstate.edu/>

Attention early birds:

Did you know that the CVM Library opens at 7 AM on weekdays? If you prefer studying late at night, the CVM Library stays open till 11 PM Monday - Thursday and 10 PM on Sundays

Faculty:

Did you know that the CVM Library provides a Reserve area? Reserve items can be anything your students need to see for an assignment-- a video, book, or article from your own collection, or a sample project. CVM Library Reserves provide a secure, monitored location that's accessible long after class is over. We can even provide a secure space for your electronic class materials that can be linked directly into MyCourses (we'll take care of the copyright fees, too). Contact Jerry Wolf at jwolf@library.msstate.edu or 5-1141 for more information.
