I was born Feb. 12, 1809, in Hardin County, Kentucky. My parents were both born in Virginia, of undistinguished families, ^{second families, perhaps I should say,} My mother, who died in my ^{tenth} ~~ninth~~ year, was of a family of the name of Bank, some of whom now reside in Adams, and other in Mason counties, Illinois. My paternal grandfather, Abraham Lincoln, emigrated from Rockingham County, Virginia, to Kentucky, about 1781 or 2, where, a year or two later, he was killed by Indians, not in battle, but by stealth, when he was laboring to open a farm in the forest. His ancestor, who was Quaker, went to Virginia from Berks County, Pennsylvania. An effort to identify them with the New ^{of the same name} England family, even is nothing more definite, than a similitude of Christian names in both families, such as Enock, Levi, Mordecai, Solomon, Abraham, and the like.

My father, at the death of his father, was but six years of age; and he grew up, literally without education. We removed from Kentucky to what is now Spencer County, Iowa, and, in my eighth year. We reached our new home about the time the State came into the Union. It was a wild region, with many bears and other wild animals, still in the woods. There I grew up. There were some schools, so called; but no qualification was ever required of a teacher, beyond "Reading, writing, and ciphering." ~~Reading, writing, and Arithmetic~~ ^{supposed to understand Latin} to the Rule of Three. If a struggler ^{happened to} sojourn in the neighborhood, he was looked upon as a wizzard— There was absolutely nothing to excite ambition for education. Of course when I came of age, I did not know much— Still somehow, I could read, write, and cipher to the Rule of Three, but that was all— I have not been to school since—The little advances I now have upon this stow of education, I have had picked up from time to time under the pressure of necessity—

I was raised to farm work, which I continued till I was twenty-two— At twenty-two I came to Illinois, and passed the first year in Macon County— Then I got ^{at that time} New Salem ~~(then~~, in Sangamon, now in Menard County, where I permanied a year as a sort of blacksmith stow— Then came the Black Hawk war, and I was elected a Captain of Volunteers—a success which gave me more pleasure than any I have had since— I went the campaign, was elected ran for the Legislature the same year (1832), and was beaten— the only time I ever have been beaten by the people— The next, and three succeeding biennial elections, I was elected to the Legislature— I was not a candidate afterwards. During this Legislative period I had studied law, and removed to Springfield to study, practiced it— In 1846 I was once elected to the lower House of Congress— Was not a candidate for re-election— From 1849 to 1854, lived enclaves, practical law more assiduously than ever before - Always a whig in politics, since generally on the whig electoral tickets, (making active con-cesses - I was losing interest in politics, when the repeal of the Missouri Compromise aroused me again - What I have done since then is pretty well known.

If any personal description of me is thought ~~worth~~ desirable, it may be said, I am, in height, six feet, four inches, nearly; lean in flesh, weighing, on an average, one hundred and eighty pounds; dark complexion, with coarse black hair, and grey eyes - no other marks or bands recollected -

Kear of W. Hill.

Yours very truly
A. Lincoln

foregoing statement is in the hand writing of Abraham Lincoln.

THE FARM

On which Abraham Lincoln was born lies two and a half miles south of Hodgenville, Kentucky, forty-five miles south of Louisville, almost in the geographic centre of the State of Kentucky, and within one hundred miles of the centre of population of the United States. Lincoln was seven years old when his father and mother moved across the Ohio River into Indiana. Since then the Lincoln farm has changed hands but three times. In 1905 the farm was in a sad state of neglect and tied up in the litigation of an estate. The courts ordered it to be sold at public auction. It was purchased by a group of patriotic citizens who organized The Lincoln Farm Association, a patriotic society created to preserve the Lincoln Birthplace Farm as a National Park. This Association, with headquarters at 74 Broadway, New York City, now has over 150,000 members, who have raised over $150,000 for this purpose. President Roosevelt will deliver the Lincoln Centennial address on the Farm and lay the cornerstone of the Memorial Hall on February 12, 1909. President Taft will dedicate the building when it is completed.
